Two students hit by cars Wednesday

Police urge students to be careful

TE SCALES
CATHY VELASCO

The third and fourth times this school year an Eastern student has been hit by a car.

Gayle M. Steck, 20, of LaMont, was hit Wednesday morning as she walked across a street and into Ninth Street.

Steck was treated at Sarah Bush Lincoln Health Center and released later Wednesday.

Steck said the driver of the car, James Hardwick, 21, an Eastern junior, was traveling at 10 m.p.h. when Steck ran into him. Hardwick was ticketed for driving on a suspended license.

In an unrelated accident, Eric Hoover, a senior, was listed in stable condition after suffering abrasions Wednesday afternoon at Sarah Bush Lincoln Health Center, after being hit on Lincoln Avenue near Seventh Street.

Hoover reportedly was hit while riding a bicycle. At press time Wednesday, police were unable to comment on the accident.

On Aug. 27, Kristy Ebersoldt, a junior, was injured and later released in a hit-and-run accident.

The most serious, Donna Connelly, a senior Eastern senior, died Aug. 26 after injuries she sustained when she was struck by a motorist who neglected to obey a stop sign at Seventh Street and Lincoln Avenue.

Charleston police assist paramedics at the scene of an accident Wednesday afternoon on Lincoln Avenue.

Hensley of the University Police Department, urges students to use caution when they cross streets and motorists to keep an eye out for pedestrians.

Crosswalks are accessible in every area and students should walk to them to cross the street, Hensley said.

All city streets are posted with 30-mph speed limits and not 20-mph as in school zones.

Charleston Police Chief Maurice Johnson said the law believes high school students and college students are old enough to know not to walk in front of traffic.

"Be very cautious when walking across the street . . . and if there is any doubt -- wait," Johnson said.

"Why argue with a car," Johnson said. Some people think they can damage a car if it hits them, but you'll come in losing, even if in the right."

Johnson said he saw no need to reduce the speed limit to 20-mph on the streets around Eastern's campus like Fourth and Ninth streets. Although he saw a "need for more observant drivers."

Glenn Williams, vice president of student affairs, said he was aware of the problem in front of Pemberton Hall when students cross Lincoln Avenue.

Williams said they have sodded it and put a fence around that area, which students knocked down. Students usually don't use crosswalks, he said.

Some solutions to speeding cars and careless students are lights, signs or asking the city and state to change the speed limit, Williams said.

Eastern can regulate any speed limits on streets that are within the campus, Williams said.

Eastern professor dies from injuries in home accident

CATHY VELASCO

A botany professor died early Wednesday morning in his sleep due to a rupture of blood from an aneurysm.

Richard L. Smith, 49, was a professor at Eastern for almost 20 years. Mr. Smith, who broke his leg earlier in the afternoon, was unable to sleep "without realizing the extent of his injury," said County Coroner Richard

Smith was admitted to Sarah Bush Lincoln Health Center at 3:45 a.m. Sunday after his wife noticed he was breathing differently. Mr. Smith died at 4 a.m. at the hospital of asphyxiation, sucking in of blood, said

Mr. Smith who was married to Mrs. Smith for 15 years, said his wife was in his daughter's room Saturday and tripped over a crate, falling into a closet, hitting his nose on a wooden shelf, said Mrs. Smith.

Mr. Smith thought "he could tough it out and handle a bump on the nose," said Mrs. Smith.

"It was a tragic accident at home . . . and had complications that resulted in death," said Mrs. Smith.

Surviving are his wife and three children, Anthony, 20; Valerie, 16; and Julie 9; sister Kathy Krogh, of Sepulveda, California; and mother Martha Smith of Northridge, California.

Terry Weidner, chairman of the botany department, said Mr. Smith was a good teacher who taught microbiology and phycology, the study of algae, which was his primary duty.

"He was selfless . . . and a good colleague. Everyone was both shocked and sad by his death. He led a good fruitful life," Weidner said.

Some instructors oppose fair share

By CRAIG EDWARDS
Administration editor

Eastern instructors opposed to the fair share provision included in the tentative contract agreement between the Board of Governors and the University Professionals of Illinois are hoping they can halt ratification of the contract.

Larry Janes, educational administration professor, is leading the effort to stop ratification of the three-year contract which was agreed upon by representatives from the BOG and UPI last Wednesday in Springfield.

Janes is opposed to the fair share provision in the contract which requires non-union faculty members to pay a percentage of union dues to cover the costs of collective bargaining.

Janes said Wednesday that there aren't many options right now, but added he would begin the protest by filing a complaint with the Illinois Education Labor Review Board.

But that complaint will not stop the automatic deduction of union dues from the paychecks of non-union faculty. He said the money will be collected and placed in escrow until a final decision is reached.

JoAnn Hummers, UPI's chief negotiator, said the exact amount to be deducted from non-union members' salaries has not yet been determined. Janes said he expects the amount to be anywhere between 50 and 60 percent of the full union dues. "It will be at least that much," he said.

"I don't think the government has a right to tell us that we have to pay union dues," Janes said. "I'm opposed to forced unionism," he said.

But Janye Ozier, president of Eastern's faculty union, UPI Local 4100, said fair share does not force anyone to join the union. A newsletter published by UPI Local 4100 says the union has a legal responsibility to represent every member of the bargaining unit, whether that person pays union dues or not.

Carol Schmudde, an English professor and executive officer of UPI Local 4100, said fair share corrects a long-time inequity. "Since our first contract in 1977, UPI members have borne the full cost of negotiating and enforcing it," Schmudde said.

In addition to the fair share provision, the tentative contract agreement calls for a 5.7 percent basic salary increase for all academic faculty effective Sept. 1. Some faculty will also receive a .33 percent increase for promotions and degree completions.

Janes has scheduled a meeting for faculty interested in halting the contract ratification at noon next Tuesday in Buzzard Building Room 212.

Ozier has scheduled the ratification on Sept. 13 in the Union addition Charleston/Mattoon Room.

Lottery winner comes forward

TALLAHASSEE, Fla.—A real estate broker who said six numbers had been "driving me crazy" presented the winning Lotto ticket today to claim her record $55 million prize.

Sheelah Ryan of Winter Springs said she didn't know what she'd do with her winnings and was unsure whether she would quit her job. She can pick up her first check for $2,767,361 next week.

"I've always been middle class and the middle class always needs manoy," she said at a news conference with her two attorneys and Lottery officials.

Ms. Ryan, 63, a native New Yorker, said she was single and had no children.

She said today marked her first trip on a plane, her first news conference and "this is the first time I've ever won $55 million."

Rail strike settlement not likely

CHICAGO (AP)—A strike by Chicago & North Western railroad workers appears inevitable, raising the spectre that 41,000 commuters will have to find another ride to work during the rush hour Friday, officials said Wednesday.

"So far, we're still quite a ways apart," said railroad spokesman James Foote. "Because of the positions of the two parties, we're putting our strike plans in effect."

Members of the United Transportation Union plan to walk off their jobs at 12:01 a.m. CDT Friday when an emergency 36-day cooling-off period imposed by congress ends.

Union workers went on strike against C & NW for four hours Aug 4 after an earlier cooling-off period imposed by President Reagan. During that first reprieve, a special presidential board posed a compromise to end strike in early August.

But Congress ended that quickly by imposing a second cooling-off period.

The union contends brain perform essential safety functions including monitoring track conditions, train orders and track signals, and protecting dis trains.

Illinois boosted as site of SSC

COLUMBUS, OHIO (AP)—A group boosting Illinois as the site of the federal government's long-discussed atom smasher sought support Wednesday from Ohio, which has been eliminated from the competition for the $6 billion operation.

SSC for Fermilab Inc., a non-profit organization that wants the Superconducting Super Collider added to an existing federal facility near Chicago, made its pitch at a luncheon and briefing for business and academic leaders, also attended by members of the news media.

The U.S. Energy Department is to make its recommendation in November.

Kristan Dean, executive director of SSC for Fermilab, said group made earlier presentations in Missouri, Wisconsin, Indiana, New York, which also have dropped from consideration.

She said the governors of states have endorsed the proposal.

Gorman hopes for productive year

By WATT MANSFIELD
Staff Writer

Tim Gorman is Eastern's financial vice president and is looking forward to a "productive" year. Gorman, a senior accounting major, said he enjoys math and that is a major reason why he wanted to be financial vice president. "I got into this really because I'm interested in numbers," Gorman said. "I was on a board (Student Organizations) last year and that was just a great experience," Gorman said. But added, "I really don't have all the experience that the others (other members of executive branch) do in government." Gorman admits readily that he is finding his way around the job,

"but that is not as hard as it sounds. I've got all these people helping me out, and it really isn't as political as the others (student government jobs)." "One of the things that I do hope to do this year is see if our money matches up with other schools in the area," Gorman said. "I know the U of I is a bigger school than we are, but I think that we should match up with them proportionately, that is taking our size and theirs into account," Gorman added. Gorman said he is sure that he can do a good job, but is "always willing" to accept a little advice. "The best way for me to learn is to do things, and when all the boards get filled I'm sure everything else will be going great," Gorman said.

Mayor questions $5,000 expenditure by commissioners

By JEFF MADSEN
City editor

Two city commissioners came under fire Tuesday after Mayor Murray Choate questioned their decision to spend $5,000 in city funds without approval from the city council.

Choate maintained that Finance Commissioner John Winnett and Streets Commissioner Wayne Lanman spent $5,000 from the city's funds for small clean-up repairs. The repairs were done at several spots throughout the city last year as part of the a $10 million sewer treatment project.

Winnett and Lanman reportedly gave the go-ahead for the repair work and authorized spending the $5,000 without consideration of the council.

"Whenever you start spending over $4,000 of money that is in the city's fund, you need to get approval," Choate told the council Tuesday.

Although spending the $5,000 had already been authorized by Winnett and Lanman, Choate added the item onto the council's agenda to get council approval.

After some discussion, the city voted to approve the spending authorization.

Lanman and Winnett said they gave the go-ahead for the repairs because the repair work was timely with the sewer treatment project. They added that by administering to the repairs immediately, instead of waiting for city crews to fix them weeks later, after the repairs worsened, they were saving taxpayers' money.

"By fixing the jobs then," Winnett said, "I thought I was saving the taxpayers money. I wouldn't have given the OK if I knew I was going to catch this much heck about it today."

When Choate commented that he was not against the repairs, but rather, spending $5,000 without city approval, Lanman quipped, "Well you can take that down and use it when you run for re-election."

Lanman has publicly announced he is running for Choate's job in the city elections this spring.

In other business, the council voted to indemnify Choate from a lawsuit filed against him by a Charleston tavern-owner.

James Sears, owner of Thirsty's tavern, 221 6th St., filed an Aug. 23 suit claiming Choate abused his discretion as Charleston's local liquor control commissioner.

By indemnifying Choate, the city will pay for any damages sought against him.

The lawsuit stems back to September 1987, when Choate reportedly "verbally agreed" to grant Sears permission to remodel his tavern. Acting of Choate's word, Sears spent nearly $37,000 to remodel Thirsty's.

Nine months later, after a judge ruled Sears was not guilty of three disturbing-the-peace complaints the city had charged him in the meantime, Sears was informed his application to remodel had been rejected.

The rejection letter stipulated Sears had not received written consent from Choate "prior to any expansion of a liquor premises."

City codes state a licensee must obtain written permission from the mayor only if they are changing locations or expanding the total floor area of the building.

The Choate indemnification is the second the city has approved within the last 30 days.

On Aug. 24, the city council voted to indemnify Public Health Commissioner Bruce Scism from a lawsuit filed against him by a former city employee.

Only students, residents can stop accidents

With the fall semester well underway there have been a rash of accidents, beginning before classes even started, involving students while they are driving, walking or even bicycling.

Editorial These students are being rushed to the hospital with either minor or major injuries. At least one student has died from an accident.

Unfortunately the police cannot do anything to prevent the accidents until after the fact. The only thing they can do in hopes of preventing an accident is to issue a ticket.

The problem occurs when students ignore the tickets and go right on driving in an unsafe manner, such as speeding, failure to yield, not paying attention while driving or even drinking and driving.

Obviously if you are speeding you do not have enough time or distance to stop safely and avoid an accident. The faster you are driving the shorter your stopping distance is and that can cause loss of lives, if not someone else's than your own.

Failure to yield to other traffic whether it be another vehicle or a pedestrian can cause a traffic accident because you are expected to stop. The other party involved is then off guard because he or she expects you to yield and doesn't expect to be a victim.

Not paying attention is self explanatory and can be avoided by being awake and alert while driving and being observant of your surroundings and events happening around you. It is a poor way to drive.

Another bad driving habit people have gotten into is driving after drinking. Students who drink and drive are not being responsible drivers.

Drinking and driving is illegal for a reason. Statistics show reflexes are slowed down and you become less alert after even the least amount of alcohol. You could be committing murder if you kill someone. Even if you don't, it can be considered attempted homicide.

Therefore, if you have been drinking, find a ride from someone who has not been drinking or walk home.

It is unfortunate that so many students take walking, riding and driving around campus for granted.

The key to staying alive and out of the hospital is within the student population and the Charleston residents. The police can only "clean up" after an accident, not prevent it.

Stop the unnecessary injuries and death and behave like responsible adults. Watch yourself when traveling around campus.

Men in military not any different

All I wanted was a peaceful weekend so I could relax and distance myself from my responsibilities at the paper for just one weekend.

I was able to get away, but one thing disturbed the relaxation I had looked forward to.

At least it was a pleasant distraction. Some of my boyfriend's co-workers decided to throw a party Friday night.

The main motivation for having this party was to celebrate. What they were celebrating is really insignificant because they will celebrate anything when the mood strikes. They don't need an excuse to throw a party, but who does?

I wasn't too concerned with why we were going to this party because I needed to let go, laugh and not worry about deadlines and whether something gets lost in computer la-la land.

In fact, the evening proved to be worth the four-hour drive home.

My ulterior motive behind going to this party was I like to watch people and see what they are like just by observing their behavior. And believe me, these guys are great to watch.

I enjoy watching these guys mostly because they are so full of energetic enthusiasm. They really know how to make someone feel at ease in any situation.

The other reason for going out with them is to prove or disprove (to myself) the myths surrounding men in the military, mainly the Navy.

Now these myths, or should I say stereotypes, make men in the Navy out to be nothing but trouble or they have no future. I guess there are some guys who are trouble and have no hope of ever making anything of themselves. However, the majority of military personnel I have met are real people just like you and me.

Donelle Pardee

To top it off, some of these men have a better chance at a future than most people I know.

Anyway, this party or celebration gave me an opportunity to see these guys in a real party atmosphere. Now there have been other parties I've been to, but this one was different. The others were like . . . social gatherings. This was a PARTY.

Now seeing that my boyfriend, Christian, is in the Navy, I tend to be slightly biased. I will readily admit it. He changed my attitude towards the military.

I used to be just like everyone else and hold a negative attitude towards the military, mainly because I didn't understand it or know anything about it.

However, through spending some time, what I can when circumstances allow, I have reached the conclusion that these guys are just like everyone else. They are no different.

They have a steady job, job security and benefits. Some even have families.

Men in the military also need to get out and have fun. To let loose and let go of the day's events, especially if they are bad ones.

Some of them go out and party, some work extra jobs and some of them will even take night classes to further their education or to open up a few more opportunities for when they get out of the military.

How they spend their time is not really important. What is important is men whose choice to leave over the current job market or college are really different than anyone else.

Sure they have their weaknesses and bad habits, but after sitting watching several types of people every chance I get I have decided that underneath it all we are all the same.

We all have a mask we hide under, but we're all human and live our lives the way we like.

Is there really anything wrong with that?

Eastern women voice grievances

Editor:

As a result of class discussions and reading about women and violence, we began to question the safety of women on Eastern's campus. The majority of students in a class of 30 related incidences of violence directed against women here in the Eastern community. Due to our discussions, we became aware of the following issues:

1. Why is it possible to walk from one end of campus to the other after dark with no readily accessible way of contacting help in an emergency?
2. Why hasn't something been done about the lack of adequate lighting on campus?

3. Why do we often see security officers patrolling on foot during the daylight hours and rarely, if ever, see them after dark?

4. Why don't we have direct-access, emergency phones located throughout the campus?

5. Why are lights off in the hallways and stairwells of buildings where evening classes are being held?

6. Why is there not at least one night assistant for each resident hall?

7. Why don't building service workers, physical plant workers, contractors, etc., wear conspicuous identification?

8. Why are some crimes committed by members of the Eastern community publicized and especially those directed against women, kept from public knowledge? How can individuals realistically assess their potential safety in any situation without such information?

9. What university sanctions have been levied against students who have been convicted of assaulting or violating the rights of other individuals?

What solutions can Eastern implement? We are writing in order to make the Eastern community aware of these problems and to see that these issues will soon be addressed.

Democrats launch pre-emptive truth squad

SPRINGFIELD (AP) - Illinois Senate Democrats launched a "pre-emptive truth squad" Wednesday to guard against what they called the possibility if a Republican campaign mudslinging.

"We're here to let the people of Illinois know that in the coming weeks we expect some serious negative campaigning," Senate President Philip Rock said at a news conference.

"Be ready and take it for what it is, damage," he said. "It has no place in the political arena."

A Republican spokesman countered that since there hadn't been any complaints about tactics so far this year, the Democrats' so-called "truth squad" was itself negative campaigning.

Rock said Democrats were offering the "early warning" because of negative campaigns in past elections, but conceded he hadn't seen any such tactics used this year.

"I hope it doesn't come," Rock said.

He contended that literature distributed during the 1986 campaigns against Sen. Patrick Welch of Peru and Sen. William O'Daniel of Mount Vernon were "two examples of distorted campaigning that the Republican State Senate Committee has manufactured."

Welch said that the GOP literature, among other things, tried to link him with candidates backed by political extremist Lyndon LaRouche and implied that he was connected with a case of arson at Southern Illinois University while he was a student there.

O'Daniel said a brochure distributed in his previous campaign accused him of selling his farm to foreign interests where "PLO dummy corporations are established to launder terrorist funds."

CAA to discuss theatre arts courses Thursday

WENDELL HUTSON

Staff writer

The Council on Academic Affairs will meet to change course numbers and rewrite descriptions for theater arts courses.

They will also discuss proposals for new senior seminars at 2 p.m. Thursday in the Union addition Arcola/Tuscola Room.

The proposed senior seminars are "Health Communications Issues," "Film and Contemporary Man and Global Issues: The Future of Humanity." The council will also discuss a proposal for a new speech course, SPC:3710 "Intercultural Communication."

A total of 11 new courses are being proposed for the Theater Arts department. Robert Kindrick, vice president for academic affairs will address the council with a report initiated by Eastern President Stan Rives.

The 80-page report is part of a year long study by five committees about ways of improving education and student life at Eastern. "The report makes recommendations on general education, admissions, student and faculty life," Kindrick said.

Junior charged for forgery

By JEFF MADSEN

City editor

An Eastern junior faces two to five years in prison and a possible $10,000 fine after he was charged with forgery Wednesday.

James A. Savage, 21, 951 Sixth St., was arrested Sept. 1. after he allegedly stole another student's savings passbook and attempted to withdraw $1,143.56 from the account.

However, tellers at the Charleston Community Bank voided the transaction when Savage could not identify himself as Allison Myers, 951 Sixth St., the owner of the passbook.

"Thursday I went to my bank to cash a check and the teller in the drive-up window asked me if I knew that they (the bank) had my savings passbook. I didn't," Myers said Wednesday. "Then they asked me if I knew that someone had tried to withdraw against my account."

Myers said she and Savage live in the same apartment complex and that Savage had apparently broke into her car, which she had left open, and stole the savings passbook from the glove compartment of the car.

Savage, a member of the U.S. Marine Corps Reserves, reportedly stole the checkbook, obtained Myers' account number, and forged a deposit slip for over $1,000 at the Charleston Community Bank, 701 6th St.

Tellers at the bank however, asked for identification to verify the transaction. At that time, Savage reportedly fled from the bank.

According to Illinois criminal codes, forgery is a Class three felony and punishable by a maximum of two to five years in prison and a $10,000 fine.

"Forgery is a very serious offense and I don't think this individual (Savage), understood the gravity of the offense," said Mark Novak of the Coles County State's Attorney's office. "A simple thing like that can be very, very serious, especially when it turns into a class three felony."

Bond was set Wednesday at $3,000 for Savage, who asked to be released on his own recognizance. He awaits trial in the Coles County Detention Center.

Workshop provides survival tips

BY RANA WOODSON
Staff writer

For students who want to start the semester off right a workshop titled "Strategies for Academic Survival" will be hosted by the Minority Student Orientation.

The workshop, geared for students who want to improve academically, "Strategies for Academic Survival" will teach students skills such as how to improve their time budgeting, studying and listening skills.

The workshop will be held at 7 p.m. Thursday in the Union addition Arcola Tuscola Room.

English associate professor Carol Stevens said, "we will be doing a lot of self help kinds of things." During the workshop Stevens said there will be a lot of role playing and discussion.

She added that she hopes students will find the workshop to be interesting.

Stevens said it's the college transition which causes students to get in trouble academically. "There's so much to do," Stevens said. She noted that the amount of freedom allows students to let temptations overcome them.

The amount of students who come to the workshop depends on students who say to themselves "what's in it for me and what can I get out of it."

Seminar applies computers to classrooms

Students, faculty and staff are invited to attend an informational seminar Thursday entitled "Computers in Education."

The seminar led by physics instructors Douglas Brandt and John Gardener will address issues concerning "how computers can be used to teach physics," Brandt said, adding, "These ideas can be applied to other disciplines."

During the seminar, guests will be given a first hand opportunity to use the available software which is applicable to IBM personal computers as well as MacIntosh

The seminar is scheduled to begin at 3 p.m. at the Old Science Building in room 223.

All interested persons are urged to attend the seminar.

Woman becomes first black Major

TRACIE REYNOLDS

The first black woman at Eastern was promoted to a major in the U.S. Army. ROTC instructor Alycia Evans was promoted from captain to major at an awards ceremony last night. "It does make me feel good to be the first black major at Eastern. It's a real challenge." Promotions are determined by the officer's records are reviewed by the promotions board. If the officer's schooling, efficiency ratings are good, they can move to the next position, she said. Major Evans, Associate Professor of military officers and battalion executive officer, published an order promoting Evans to major last May.

Forty people attended Tuesday's ceremonies, including President Stanley Rives, Major Prenger, Lt. Col. Loyd McCammon, and Evans' two sons, Damione, 11 and Calvin, 7. Her sons helped pin on her new rank.

Evans has many new responsibilities that come along with her new position.

"The assignments have been challenging. My position hasn't changed much. I've just changed from company grade officer to field grade officer," Evans said.

When Evans first arrived at Eastern in May 1987, she said she found that she had to adjust to Eastern's small size.

"It took getting use to, but Eastern is a beautiful campus, the community is supportive and I've come to appreciate it," Evans said.

Major Evans said she finds that being an ROTC instructor can be very rewarding. "It is an opportunity to see a cadet start from a certain point and grow from there. They challenge themselves to work harder. You realize that you had a part in it, and that makes my job all worthwhile," Evans said.

Senators
design

CATHY PODWOJSKI

Designations from two senate members were approved at Wednesday's senate meeting, bringing the total number of senate seats to five.

Designations of Bill Helmbacher and Michele Michals were accepted, opening a total of three seats in the residence hall senate and two seats in the at-large designations.

Helmbacher cited other academic responsibilities and time conflicts as reasons for resigning in a letter to Senate President Jane Clark. Michals resigned to accept an internship to work for the George Bush campaign through the November elections. Michals will be working in Springfield as the down-state coordinator.

The Designated Driver organizers prepared a kickoff that program Friday, final details for sending out flyers to the residence halls.

Registrars will not be registering students to vote at Saturday's football game, announced BOG representative John Kennedy. The registrars will be at all specified locations on campus through Sept. 30.

Another student senate action, the Circle of Service organization related to the senate group, is being started by Senate President Michele Michals. The group will have its first meeting Thursday to discuss planning of Morton Park, its first activity.

Interviews for committees and boards continuing through next week, and Senate Vice President Andrea Pyle said response for applications has been better than last year.

"We're really excited about participation this year," said Pyle.

Sigma Pi fraternity proud of its tradition

By MICHELLE ZAWIN
Staff writer

Tradition. That is what Eastern's Beta Gamma chapter of Sigma Pi stands for, said Sigma Pi President Don Ballou.

"Tradition is the key at the Beta Gamma chapter of Sigma Pi," he said.

Ballou said the fraternities' dedication to their traditions has helped them in their preparation for such events as Homecoming, Greek Week and on the national level.

At the national level, Eastern's chapter of Sigma Pi has won the Grand Sages award three times. The Grand Sages award is given to the top chapter of Sigma Pi every two years, said Jeff Eckburg, former president of Sigma Pi.

Eckburg said Eastern's chapter is the only one to have won this award three times.

He said the award is based on efficiency, recruitment, campus involvement, community service and scholarship.

"It is based on everything Sigma Pi stands for," he said.

Eckburg said the award is hard to win because there are 158 chapters internationally. "It's hard work because they take everything into account," he said.

Ballou said Eastern's chapter has been constantly ranked top ten in the nation since the 1970s.

Beta Gamma was founded in 1911 by Burtrand Holley, who taught business law at Eastern.

Eckburg said Holley started many of the fraternity traditions that still stand today.

One of the traditions started by Holley was the code of Chivalry, which includes standing up when a woman enters the room and opening doors for women.

Charles Schuster, current rush chairman, said "we are very serious about chivalry, we believe it makes us better people by shaping us for society and bettering ourselves for the community."

MICHELLE ZAWIN/Staff photographer

Members of the Sigma Pi fraternity proudly display their trophy.

Part of the tradition also includes winning. Sigma Pi has won first place for moveable parts 26 years out of 27 in the Homecoming parade. Another winning tradition is placing first in tugs and Greek sing during Greek Week in the spring.

Ballou said they begin practicing for Greek week, which is in late March, at the end of February.

Also a part of their tradition is scholarship. "We care about grades. We monitor our pledges and teach them time management," Ballou said.

"We stress unity of the pledge class, the have to help each other so the whole group can move ahead, not individually," Schuster said.

Sigma Pi pledge education includes history, obligations and traditions.

"This lets them know what they are, then they can apply what they have learned while pledging when they go active," Schuster said.

Also an important part of Sigma Pi is their house mom of 26 years, Genevieve Slevin.

Eckburg said Slevin meets with the new pledges to "teach them table manners in the Burt Holley tradition."

Slevin said she teaches them table manners for use later in life.

Slevin said her main job is to give them support. "I pat them on the back and tell that they are good," she said.

Bears' Dent, Thomas suspended for violating NFL drug policy

CHICAGO (AP) Richard Dent, one of the NFL's top defensive players, and Calvin Thomas, a running back, have been suspended 30 days for violating the NFL's policy on drugs, the league's Bears announced Tuesday.

In a statement, the Bears said that Thomas will remain out of the Bears' training facility until after the suspension.

Head coach Mike Ditka, who learned of the league-ordered suspensions late Wednesday afternoon, said he was surprised.

"Maybe you've got to get knocked down before you can stand up," Ditka said. "If this helps them, I'm for it."

Neither player was immediately available for comment, and the Bears refused to discuss details of the violations, or reports that one of the players had refused to take a drug test while the other had flunked the test.

"The Bears support the NFL's measures to combat substance abuse," said Bears President Michael McCaskey in the team statement. "We were disappointed to lose Richard and Calvin's services as players, but it is in their best interests to begin a drug rehabilitation program."

Dent, a 28-year-old defensive end in his sixth pro season, led the NFL with 17 sacks during the Bears' 1985 Super Bowl season and was named MVP in the Bears' 46-10 Super Bowl victory.

GN to show DePaul game Jan. 11

men's basketball game at DePaul on Wednesday, Jan. 11, 1989 will be televised by WGN out of Chicago.

During the game will be broadcast the game will be broadcast by the Chicago Cubs radio station and former Chicago Cubs player Mengelt. Tipoff is slated for 7:30 p.m. at the Rosemont arena.

The excited about receiving son's alleged suicide attempt, which was pure fiction by those who said to him, may have been an attempt to attract more attention from a wife who is ignoring him, the close to the heavyweight said.

YORK (AP) Mike Tyson's alleged suicide attempt, which was pure fiction by those who said to him, may have been an attempt to attract more attention from a wife who is ignoring him, the close to the heavyweight said.

Tyson's manager, Bill Cayton, said, confirmed on Tuesday that the fighter's wife, Robin Givens, and others have urged Tyson to seek help from a Manhattan psychiatrist.

However, said he hasn't seen Tyson for nearly two years. He said he was prevented from visiting Tyson in the past by Givens, her mother, and Tyson's new publicist, Howard Rubenstein.

It was apparent that while Tyson was recovering from a concussion sustained last Sunday when his car ran into a tree, a rift had developed between the Givens group and the group that includes Cayton and Tyson's former manager Kevin Rooney was the national exposure," Coach Rick Samuels said in a press release. "This is a great opportunity to show fans that we have a competitive program."

The Panthers could receive between $11,000 and $12,000 for the game.

Samuels has also learned that the Panthers first opponent in the Chaminade Holiday Tournament in Hawaii on December 23-25 will be New Mexico State.

Other first round games pit Miami (Fla.) against Old Dominion, Iowa vs. Eastern Washington and Chaminade vs. St. Louis University.

"The tournament has not been bracketed. Consequently, they may wait to see who wins first round games before pairing the second round," Samuels said.

He also announced that the home game vs. Xavier on Monday, Dec. 19 will start at 6:30 p.m., an hour earlier than normal, to facilitate the team's early departure for the Hawaii tournament the next morning.

Going for the kill

Sophomore setter Kelly Stover spikes the ball during a practice last year. The Lady Panthers play in the Ball State Invitational Friday and Saturday at Muncie, Ind.

McMahon: Healthy and ready

LAKE FOREST (AP)—He's healthy and he's hot. But Jim McMahon isn't satisfied yet.

McMahon may have played one of his best football games of his career Sunday when he directed the Chicago Bears to a stunning 34-7 victory over the Miami Dolphins. But the quarterback said he could have done better.

"I still had a couple of guys open for touchdown passes and didn't hit them," McMahon said.

Playing without injuries for the first time in his career, the flamboyant McMahon became the patient McMahon in a ball-control game seldom seen in the NFL.

Chicago controlled the ball for 45 minutes, 32 seconds to the Dolphins 14:28, as the Bears defense managed to keep the ball away from Miami quarterback Dan Marino.

McMahon scored two touchdowns, a 1-yard dive and a 2-yard roll and completed 14 of 23 passes for 172 yards.

One of his big plays came on what seemed to be a scramble before he flipped the ball to Dennis Green for a 22-yard gain that set up a second-quarter touchdown to give the Bears a 28-7 lead.

"It was supposed to be a shovel pass," McMahon said. "But the defensive end got in the way. I waited and when he slipped by, Dennis was wide open. I just flipped him the ball."

Except for his first season in 1982, McMahon has not gone through a campaign without some sort of injury. He has had several shoulder operations, pulled hamstrings, back injuries and even a lacerated kidney.

But this year, he hasn't missed a snap since the opening of camp, and his goal is to play the entire season injury-free.

"I feel great, no problems," McMahon said after his, and the Bears first test of the season.

He suffered a slight dislocation of the left shoulder in the Bear's playoff loss to Washington last season, but the shoulder held up Sunday through a few knocks and a sack.

"I hadn't missed any pre-season camps until last year," McMahon recalled. "No question about it. I came back too soon last year and wasn't ready to play."

He was on the injured reserve at the start of the 1987 season after undergoing rotator cuff surgery and did not return to full action until late October. He also missed the last three games of the season with a hamstring injury.

He returned in the 21-17 playoff loss to Washington, and took blame for the loss, but later conceded, "I wasn't at full strength."

The Bears ran the ball 54 times against Miami, but McMahon sees the Bears passing more in the future.

"We don't have to face Marino anymore, we had to control the ball against Miami and our running game was working," he said. "We need more of a balanced offense. We have a lot of weapons and we can throw the ball 40 times if we have to. But against Miami, we had to keep their offense off the field."

Coach Mike Ditka appreciated the patient McMahon.

"There's a time to throw and a time not to throw," Ditka said. "McMahon showed a lot of patience and it was good that Jim had the patience. Quarterbacks like to throw the ball and we'll do a lot more of that."

"I was happy for the running backs and the linemen," Ditka added.

WIU aims for elusive conference title

Western Illinois came within a game of advancing to the NCAA I-AA playoffs last season.

The Leathernecks were in the driver's seat, having won their first five Gateway Conference games in a row. Western had only to beat Northern Iowa at Macomb to advance, but the Panthers came in and destroyed the Leathernecks 52-7 ending their bid for a playoff berth.

"We've been close, but that's not good enough," said Western Coach Bruce Craddock. "This is the year to win it all."

If Western is to be successful this season, and its 17-12 opening win over league foe Southern Illinois on Saturday appears to show it will, then the Leathernecks need another banner year from quarterback Paul Singer.

Singer, dubbed the "Throwing Machine", completed 57 percent of his passes for 2,508 yards and 22 touchdowns a season ago.

He was rated as the third best NFL prospect at quarterback, in any division, prior to the 1988 campaign.

Singer and the Leathernecks are fortunate to have three of their top pass catchers back from a season ago in Mike Borich, Chris Earl and Steve Williams.

Western's backfield trio of Brett Grimshaw, Mike Cox and Derek Swanson are all double threats. Grimshaw led the team in rushing, with 530 yards, and receptions with 48 for 440 yards.

Cox gained 356 yards on the ground and another 160 on 22 receptions. Swanson caught seven passes and gained 139 yards on just 16 carries.

The Leathernecks have to rebuild an offensive line that was decimated by graduation.

On the defensive side of the ball, Western returns seven starters.

Bruce Craddock

The defensive line will be handled by end Marlin Williams, a pro prospect who had 10 sacks last year and tackled 100 times.

Western, which plays a 3-4 defense, returns only one linebacker from a season ago in Presley White. Armie Galloway will compete with Thaddeus Jimmy Lewis and J.J. Sullivan for the other linebacker position.

The Leathernecks seem strong with the return of Western's defensive starters Lorenzo Taylor (5'11"), and Jay Wade (5'9") to return at nickel back. Billie who led the team with 10 break-ups, and Emrick to return to starting roles at corners.

The kicking game should be Western strong point with the return of placekicker Bennett and punter Mike Krause.

Bennett was the team's top scorer from last season. Krause was an All-American, averaging 42.5 yards a punt a season.

Western's schedule will be the most trouble because it will play three straight league games on the road in September.

Lady Panthers to play in tournament at Normal

By MARK DAWSON

The Lady Panther softball team opens the fall season this Friday and Saturday as they begin play in the Lady Redbird Fall Classic in Normal.

Eastern will play its first game in the eight team tourney on Friday against Illinois Central College at 10 a.m. The Lady Panthers will play Northern Iowa at 2 p.m., followed by Indiana State at 6 p.m.

The Lady Panthers enter the fall schedule without the services of All-Gateway Conference performers Angel Lendvay, Zam Mogill and Sara Karcher.

Coach Janet Marquis will have three freshman making up the pitching rotation. Marquis said "going with three freshman starters will be an eye opening experience, but I expect them to do well."

Leading the freshman pitching staff are Kim Horvath, Jill Richards, Martha Wendt and Amy Trivaca.

Although Eastern will enter the tournament with a young team, Marquis expects them to be competitive.

"We will be returning starters from a 29-17 team a year that won the Gateway Conference in regular season play," Marquis said. "I expect these players to help the young ones along."

Offensively, Marquis expects more production than they have ever had before. We have good pitching and defense, but the offense has been ineffectual.

Joining Eastern in the tournament will be Bradley, Ball State, Western Illinois, Northern Iowa, Illinois Central College, Indiana State and College of St. Francis.
